some funds from the New England and Bermuda district of Kiwanis," Delisle said. "We arranged for Kiwanis international to send a team of professionals into the community that was supplemented by volunteers from all the Kiwanis clubs in the surrounding area."

From there, they did a "membership blitz", which was a three-day gathering where they compiled a list of prospective members and asked community members to agree to become a part of the new club. Once they hit 15 members, they were ready to charter a new club.

"We are a legal Kiwanis club as of right now and they're ready to start doing service," Delisle said.

Now the club is ready to begin planning programs to help around the community.

"We're ready to start our service with some children's safety kits and we're getting our charter event ready, which will hopefully take place in September," Candace Daigneault, assistant manager of the TDBank branch in Holyoke and president of the new club, said.

young children. They hope to give these out to families in the city of Holyoke. The goal is to adopt a park, through the parks and rec department, for a cleanup project. Then, they would clean up the park so children can enjoy it in the summer and have it as a space to give out these safety kits.

"The primary mission is the prevention and treatment of pediatric trauma," Delisle said. "That is injuries to children that occur as a result of accidents.

So these child safety kits that we've developed over the course of the last 50 years include educational items as well as items that help a new parent or young parent to protect the safety of their infant and young children."

This group also hopes to do work with teaching children about bicycle safety in the future.

Both Delisle and Daigneault are delighted to be part of the work bringing this club back into Holyoke.

"It's great to be able to have the Kiwanis presence back in the city, because they were so well known prior to them disbanding, and I think having the group of people that we have on board, it's such a diverse group and it's ready to go, and I think it's going to give back to Holyoke," Daigneault said.

This club is still open to new members and they would love to see new faces join this group.

"It's really important to stress that the recruiting continues," Delisle said. "The more members the club has, the more folks from the Holyoke community who chose to become members and get involved, that means more diversity, that means more people to do service, it means that the club will be able to take on bigger and more important projects. The door is open and we are very anxious to welcome folks who might be interested in becoming a part of this effort."

Meetings for the club are every Thursday morning at 9 at the Holyoke Public Library. Members are also welcome to join on zoom. The meetings are open to the public so anyone interested is welcome to attend.
